Double Patenting

The non-statutory double patenting rejection, whether of the obviousness-type or non-obviousness-type, is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent. In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); and In re Goodman, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(b) and © may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a non-statutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.78(d).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-2, 5, 11-12, 15 and 21 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-19 of U.S. Patent 6791230 (hereafter, USP '230) in view of Pop, Sr. (US 5,554,900).

Claims 1-19 of USP'230 are similar to claims 1-2, 11-12, 15 and 21 of this application. Both the USP'230 and the present application claim a high speed generator comprising:

a stator;

and a rotor, wherein the rotor includes the following:

a shaft;

rotor core with first and a second pole, each pole having windings and is spaced apart from one another to form a region therebetween, i.e., interpole region; and,

and a coil support assembly for supporting the coils, i.e., the coil support is located in the interpole region.

The USP'230 substantially claims the same invention as claimed in the present application, except for the following: the rotor is formed of a plurality of laminations and an interlamination disk disposed between at least two of the laminations and the coil support assembly is coupled to the interlamination disk.

Pop, Sr., however, teaches a rotor core having a plural core subsets (210) of laminations, wherein an interlamination disk (282) disposed between at least two of the laminations for providing mechanical support for the modular core. Those skilled in the art would understand that since Pop's teaching of the interlamination disk (282) providing support for the laminated magnetic core, it would have been obvious to an artisan to abut the coil support to the interlamination disk because, while the disk serving the same purpose of mechanically support for the coil support assembly, the coupling therebetween the coil support assembly and the interlamination disk, which is formed of non-magnetic material, via any fastening means such as bolts or screws, would not electrically or magnetically interfere with the magnetic characteristics of the rotor magnetic lamination and the windings.

Thus, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to modify the USP'230 patented invention by configuring the laminated pole core with interlamination disk disposed between at least two of the laminations, as taught by Pop, Sr., and couple the coil support assembly to the interlamination disk. Doing so would provide means to mechanically support the laminated magnetic core, and the coil support assembly without any electrically or magnetically interferes with the magnetic characteristics of the rotor magnetic lamination and the windings.

Allowable Subject Matter

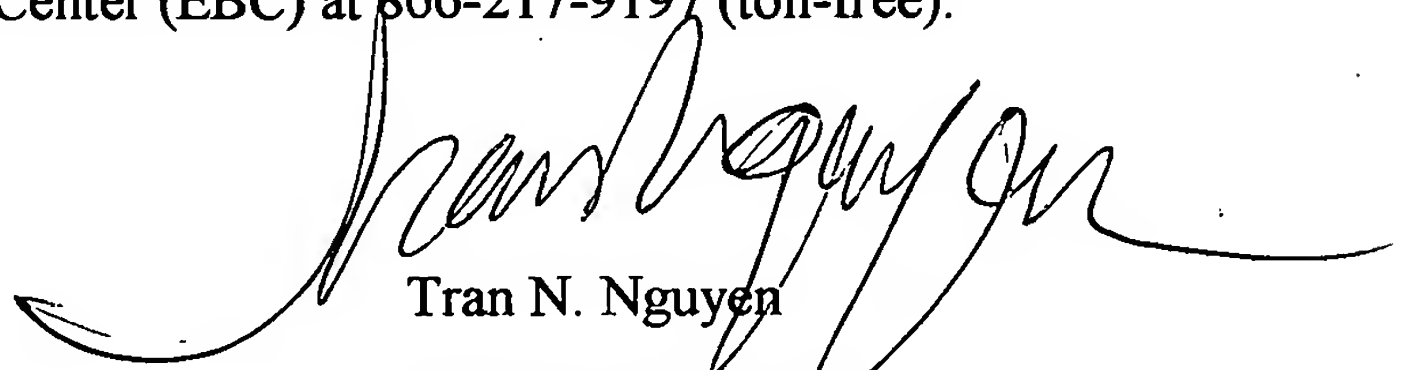

Claims 3, 4, 6-10, 13-14, 16-20, and 22 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
